New entry: Never again!

Yesterday, we went to a shopping centre. Dad was happy because he found a good space in the underground car park. He smiled and gave me a coin for the shopping trolley. I got one and pushed it to the escalators. Unfortunately, the trolley didn't go straight so I had to get another one. Meanwhile, my little brother, Ashley was trying to go up the wrong escalator: the one that was going down. Dad told him off and made him sit in the trolley.

When we got to the ground floor, Mum discovered she had left the shopping list in the car. Dad had to go to get it. He wasn't smiling any more.

It was the first week of the sales and all the shops were really crowded. We were waiting for Dad at the meeting point when I saw my friend Julia coming out of the toilets near the entrance. She asked me if I wanted to hang out with her so I asked my parents if we could meet later. To my surprise, they agreed and told me to be at the supermarket checkout in one hour.

Julia and I bought ice creams in the food court. Then we checked out what films were on in the multi screen cinema and after that we had a look in some clothes shops. I found a bargain, a cool top reduced to £5.

When I got to the supermarket, my parents weren't at the checkout. So I walked past all the aisles looking for them. I found Ashley in the tinned food section. He was picking tins off the shelf to make a pyramid. When I pulled him away, he started crying, as usual. Eventually, I found my parents in the frozen foods section. Mum frowned.

'Cheryl? Why's Ashley crying?'
'I don't know!'

She looked annoyed so I changed the subject.
'Can we get ice cream?'

It was time to go. At checkout number 4 was a family with half the shop in their trolley so Dad stood in line behind a man at checkout number 5. The man only had four apples in his basket. But there was a problem with his credit card. It took him ages to pay! Why does Dad always choose the wrong checkout?

The trolley was heavy so we went down in the lift. We got out at level -1 but we couldn't find the car. We looked everywhere. The ice cream was melting. Finally, we remembered the car was at level -2.

On the way home we got stuck in a traffic jam. 'Do you think we should try shopping online?' asked Mum.

We all answered immediately.
'Yes!'
