ROYAL SHROVETIDE FOOTBALL

ASHBOURNE ROYAL SHROVETIDE FOOTBALL is a game played in and around the small English town of Ashbourne once a year, in the week before Easter.

It is similar to football because it is played with <sup>1</sup> _____ ball, there are goal areas and the aim is to get the ball there; but that's where the similarities end. In fact, to a casual onlooker the game may look more like a street riot than a sporting <sup>2</sup> _____.

The two halves of the match last eight hours each: eight hours on Tuesday and eight on Wednesday. There is no limit on the number of <sup>3</sup> _____: anyone born in Ashbourne can take part. The two teams are the 'Up'ards, those born north of the local river, and the 'Down'ards, those born south of it. The game begins in the centre of Ashbourne, but the goals are five kilometres apart, with the town in the middle. To score a goal a player <sup>4</sup> _____ tap the ball three times against a stone post in the goal area.

There are very few rules. You mustn't kill people during the game, you mustn't hide <sup>5</sup> _____ ball in a bag or transport it by car – that's about it!
